

FireStream Names New Director of Corporate Development

Steve Lange, Director of Corporate Development,
FireStream WorldWide,
Inc.

ST. LOUIS – April 8, 2005 – FireStream WorldWide, Inc., named Steve Lange as director of corporate development, the company announced this week.

"We needed an experienced business leader who is analytical but also good at building relationships, and Steve Lange fits the bill perfectly," said FireStream President Glenn Turner. "We intend to leverage his skills and experience to increase our acquisition activity."

Lange is responsible for identifying synergistic software and IT services acquisitions in the Petroleum Industry and positioning the companies to enter the FireStream portfolio. Lange also joins FireStream's Board of Directors.

Before joining FireStream, Lange served 20 years at Washington, Mo., based Sporlan Valve Company in a variety of leadership positions in finance and operations. Lange was instrumental to the growth of Sporlan, a family-owned business, until it was sold last year to a public company.

St. Louis-based FireStream WorldWide, Inc., delivers superior quality, high value software solutions to the petroleum industry. FireStream is a global company that has grown rapidly and profitably since it was founded in 2001. Today FireStream has 65 employees and more than 200 customers in 40 states.
