

CarterEnergy Selects FireStream Solution

“Through a rigorous analysis, RFP process, and on-site presentations and demonstrations, FireStream emerged with the clearest solution.”

CarterEnergy CEO

ST. LOUIS, MO – May 16, 2005 - FireStream WorldWide, Inc., announced today that CarterEnergy Corporation, the largest ConocoPhillips distributor in the United States, has selected FireStream’s Ascend platform as the hub of its corporate information system.

“As a function of the growth of our business and changes in the industry, it became clear that CarterEnergy needed to enhance its system,” said Bryan Beaver, CarterEnergy’s CEO. “Through a rigorous analysis, RFP process, and on-site presentations and demonstrations, FireStream emerged with the clearest solution.”

“CarterEnergy would take any software company to a new level, whomever they selected,” said FireStream President Glenn Turner, “because no one solution had all the functionality they needed. FireStream won their business because we had an existing relationship that we built upon, and we were able to map out a project plan for delivering the functionality CarterEnergy required.”

FireStream’s Ascend platform is a MS SQL Server-based back-office accounting, order and inventory management system. The Ascend solution enables wholesale and retail petroleum marketers to achieve unparalleled control over their businesses and grow gallons without increasing expenses.

About CarterEnergy

CarterEnergy is a distributor of 141 different energy products across Kansas, Missouri, Oklahoma, Illinois, Texas, Colorado and Arkansas, and has worked with entrepreneurs and small business owners for the past 45 years. Its primary focus is on developing convenience stores and truck stops with first-time owners as well as chain retailers.

CarterEnergy also provides fleet and commercial fueling services for companies in and around the Kansas City metroplex, and operates a fleet of transports in four major metropolitan markets.
